"SCIENCE SURPASSES THE MIRACLES OF MYTHOLOGY"

The practice of medicine and pharmacy in ancient days was based chiefly on superstition. Little was known about how the body was constructed. Most diseases were considered to be caused by evil spirits.

Modern perfected methods of diagnosis enable physicians to correctly determine the cause of sickness. Fortified by this knowledge, aided by the scientific method, perfected drugs they often, almost overnight, produce results that were formerly impossible. That is why now, more than ever, it is wise to consult your physician when sick.

LOCAL BUSINESS

By C. S. TALBERT

Chairman, Dept. of Journalism, University of Mississippi

You often hear the quotation, "Figures don't lie." Yet, at times people can be very stubborn about believing in figures. A letter to the editor of a grocery store in Kentucky tells how his refusal to believe in figures almost cost him his business.

The grocer, who operates in a county seat town, explains how he learned about figures:

"We were depending altogether on the advertising placed in a state-circulated paper by our cooperative buying organization. The advertising was supposed to serve all the stores in our group. It sponsored some clever promotions, but we still didn't seem to get our part of the market."

"Our local publisher pointed out that the metropolitan paper circulated only 350 copies in our community, while the local paper had more than two thousand subscribers. But we were not convinced by his figures until the publisher challenged us to try a test with coupons." The grocer continued.

The store had been giving special prices on certain items when coupons from the metropolitan paper were presented. Some 125 coupons were presented each week. "When we finally ran the same type of coupon in a small ad in the local paper, 1357 coupons were presented in the first week. I really started believing in figures then," the grocer wrote.

The grocer said his only complaint was that his week-end Friday night. But he doubted his stock of key items and continued the local advertising.

The lesson in figures was an old one that retailers can afford to forget—that is, all business is local, and local shopping starts in the hometown newspaper.

Catches 48-Pound King Mackerel

Charles W. Lindsey, of Elba, took no chances about anyone not believing his fish story, when he landed a 48-pound king mackerel from his boat in the Gulf a few days ago.

He had the fish packed in ice and brought home for all to see. Now all his friends are asking him, "Going to eat it or mount it?"

"VAUGHAN - VILLA" was gaily agitated last Thursday night, the food was tastefully prepared by chef Freddie Rainer and the conversation was friendly and interesting. A group of us had gathered at Joe Ann Rainer's invitation to see the new house and to see the new furniture. The new house was a lovely affair, with a very modern design. The new furniture was also very modern and comfortable.

A SEATED TEA on Thursday, May 29, was held at the home of Mrs. Fulton Clark when Marie Dean Boyd was hostess to thirty-five guests.

In the living room white lilacs were artistically arranged on a pedestal table. The mantle held pink daisies and Queen Ann's Lace. A bowl of white gardenias gave a soft fragrance to the whole room.

In the music room, bowls of pink roses and green plants completed the decorations. Understand that the honoree was quite a kitten in a dress of red and white with matching hat. She received a

SOIL CONSERVATION NEWS
By T. C. Self and Joe Wildman, S.C.S.
Soil Conservation technicians ran field terraces on a fifty acre parcel for F. F. Clark this spring. The farm is located in the Brooklyn community and is owned by Mr. Raso. Mr. Raso has cultivated this farm for the past seventeen years.

After completing the terraces this spring, forty acres were planted to corn. Just last week Mr. Raso had this to say, "I called on Soil Conservation personnel to help me solve my problem. Preliminary survey work is now under way to determine the possibility of a cheap water source."

Elmer Bryan has a new combine. We are happy to learn that Mr. Bryan has a combine and will be available to harvest various seed crops for farmers in the county.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS
Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions; according to Thy mercy, remember Thou me for Thy goodness' sake, O Lord. (Psalm 25:1)

Some of us find it difficult to forgive ourselves of the thoughts or willful sins of our younger days, and a feeling of guilt lies like a stone on our hearts through the long years. But Our Father, through Christ Jesus, forgives us when we are truly repentant; we should then forgive ourselves.

FOREST NEEDS
WILL BE HEAVY
IN YEARS AHEAD
AUBURN—There's a big job ahead in forest management if the U. S. is to meet its future timber needs, says A. P. Extension Forester Ivan R. Martin. He pointed out that this crop will do more good for dairy cows and hogs than any other crop. Alfalfa hay, the agronomist said, will produce additional use of forest land for recreational and water yield purposes.

The answer lies pretty largely in the hands of farmers and other owners of small forest tracts, Martin said. Three-fourths of our commercial forest land is privately owned. This land is distributed among 4.5 million owners, of which 3.4 million are farmers.

The current production of much forest land in the U. S. is low. For one thing, production depends upon keeping the land growing as many trees as it can. One-fourth of our commercial forest area is poorly stocked; over 40 million acres have less than 10 per cent of the trees they are capable of maintaining; and another 73 million acres are only 10 to 40 per cent stocked.

"Southern tree farmers, on the other hand, are far above the average," says Martin, and are making rapid strides toward getting more woodlands planted, managed, and producing. Only 10 per cent of these woodlands are poorly stocked. Forest Service reports indicate that there was a 7000 percent increase between 1945 and 1953 in the number of Southern farmers managing their woodlands correctly. This is due primarily to our rapid growth rate and resulting higher per-acre profits farmers have been obtaining from managed woodlands in recent years.

MILK BOARD TO MEET
The Alabama Milk Control Board will hold public hearings with regard to all matters and things affecting the production, distribution, classification, pricing and consumption of milk at Dothan, June 17, at the county court house, and at Clayton, June 18, at the court house.

POOR ORIGINAL

I'M ASHAMED OF MYSELF

Yes, I'm ashamed to admit that when I sent Eileen and Jimmy to Daily Vacation Church School, it was for a selfish reason. Having them at school each day would give me a couple of carefree hours of my own!

Then, the first afternoon, they came home bursting with enthusiasm. While I gave them a snack, they sang me a song they had learned, based on the books of the Bible—and they knew each one! Guiltily, I asked myself if I could do as well!

Vacation Church School will be over in another week, but in our house it's going to continue until fall. Each morning, Eileen, Jimmy and I will have a school session of our own, and they can help me re-learn some of the things I'd half forgotten. And when next summer comes, Eileen and Jimmy will be going to Vacation Church School again—but for themselves, this time, not for me!

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor in the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of the community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

It also learned that Penny Holloway of Kingston will enter the State Baking Contest at Auburn. We congratulate these three fine girls, and we're hoping they will win State honors.

REHABILITATION AND DISABILITY RULE EXPLAINED

Is there a connection between the disability provisions under social security and vocational rehabilitation? There is, according to Harry N. Scott, manager of the Dothan district in setting up the disability provisions in the law, intended to encourage and strengthen the vocational rehabilitation programs operated by the various States in cooperation with the Federal government.

Therefore, it provides that when an application is made under any one of the three disability provisions in social security, freezing of an earnings record, benefits starting at age 56, or disabled child's benefits, the applicant's name will be referred to the State Vocational Rehabilitation Agency. The State agency will also be furnished information in the file which will help decide whether the applicant might be helped by rehabilitation services. The State agency has responsibility for providing counseling, training and other services which the disabled may need to help them get back on the job, Scott added.

As further encouragement, the social security law provides that a person receiving disability benefits may continue to receive such benefits for at least 12 months, if he accepts rehabilitation services and returns to work under a State plan. Further information on the disability provisions under social security, district office, Scott concluded.
